Your privacy when using our forms

Who do we collect personal information about?

As we provide services to veterans and their families, we may at times collect information about the following people:

- Veterans
- Veteran's current and previous spouses or partners
- Veteran's children or dependents
- Veteran's next of kin
- Other individuals involved with a veteran.

We may also collect information about individuals who visit our offices or contact us.

When do we collect information about you?

We may collect information about you in a number of circumstances. For example, when you:

- correspond with us, whether in person, by letter, phone or by other means.
- complete and submit forms relating to specific services we offer
- utilise our services
- subscribe to our newsletter
- follow or post comments on our social media
- visit one of our offices where CCTV is in operation.

What kinds of personal information do we collect?

As our services to Veterans and their families are broad, we may collect a variety of personal information about yourself and others as part of delivering services to Veterans. If accessing health services, this may include health records.

We may not gather all the information we require directly from you. Instead, we may collect certain information from NZDF, ACC, MSD and medical practitioners as relevant.

If you are unsure about why we are requesting certain information at any time please don't hesitate to email us at veteransprivacy@nzdf.mil.nz or you can use the contact us form on this website.

Contact us

How do we use your information?

We use your information to:

- make decisions in relation to claims, entitlements and services we offer
- provide information to you about our services
- deliver services you have requested
- contact you in an emergency
- determine which Government agency should provide and pay for the services you have requested
- assist with your query
- assist in reviews and appeals under the Veterans' Support Act
- deter criminal events, objectionable behaviours, and safety incidents occurring on our property
- detect and collect evidence of criminal events, objectionable behaviours and safety incidents occurring on our property
- consider and review how we operate
- improve our processes and services, through monitoring of the operation of the Act and policy/law reform

development

- prevent, detect, investigate and prosecute offences.

Who can access my information?

You are welcome to obtain a copy of your information we hold at any time. Please email us a veteransprivacy@nzdf.mil.nz if you would like a copy.

Our staff and people who deliver services for us on our behalf may have access to your information as required for the role they undertake.

In certain circumstances we may also provide access to your information by other people, as follows:

- Individuals or organisations you have authorised to act on your behalf, such as your spouse or RSA member.
- Individuals or organisations who have a current active power of attorney for your affairs.

We won't share your information with your next of kin unless you explicitly authorise this or they have a power of attorney.

Who do you share my information with?

We may need to share your information with certain other organisations depending on the circumstances as follows:

- When you wish to access medical services, we may share your health information with the GP or medical specialist.
- When you access certain services, we may need to share information with our service providers or contractors to enable them to provide support to you, for example the Veteran's Independence Programme (VIP).
- To enable payment of the Veteran's pension and to ensure consistency with other benefits when you receive services from us we will share information with The Ministry of Social Development
- If you register or apply for a condition as a veteran, we will check your qualifying service with NZDF. After that point, no further information will be shared regarding you with NZDF.
- If you make a claim under ACC, we may share information with ACC to allow assessment as to whether the claim should be covered by ACC or us. We also share information to enable us to work together to facilitate your recovery.
- If we believe you are at risk of self-harm or a risk to others, we may share your information with your local DHB's Mental Health related services, your GP and New Zealand Police.
- We do not directly share anonymised information relating to your website usage with any other party. However as detailed within Google's privacy policy, Google may share this information publicly and with their partners.
- If we believe a crime has been committed, we may share your information with New Zealand Police or any other relevant Government agency.

Do you have any questions or concerns about your information?

You can contact us at any time if you have questions or concerns on what information about you, we are collecting, how it's being used, how it may be used, or if you wish to receive a copy of your information.

Contact us

How can you make a complaint?

If you would like to make a complaint, you can contact our Privacy Officer directly, by sending an email to veteransprivacy@nzdf.mil.nz

You can also make a complaint to the New Zealand Privacy Commissioner. Information about how to lodge a complaint is available on their website.

Statistical information and cookies

We may collect statistical information about your visit to our website to help us improve it.

This information does not identify individuals, and makes use of cookies. A cookie is a piece of code that creates a file on your computer to track the pages that you view on our website.

Google Analytics

We use Google Universal Analytics to collect and analyse details about the use of our website.

You may turn off cookies at any time. Most browsers have a feature that allows the user to refuse cookies, or issues a warning when cookies are being sent. Turning off cookies will not affect your ability to use this website.

The information Google Analytics collects includes:

- the first 3 parts of the IP address of your device
- the pages you accessed on this website and the links you clicked on
- the date and time you visited this website
- the referring site, if any, through which you clicked through to this website
- the operating system, for example, Windows 11 or Mac OS X on your device
- the type of web browser you used, for example, Internet Explorer or Mozilla Firefox
- other incidental information such as screen resolution and the language setting you used.

The data is collected and stored on the Google server and is viewable by authorised staff as detailed in their privacy policy. We may share this information with other government agencies.

You may choose to not have Google Analytics collect your information by disabling cookies in your browser, or by installing the Google Analytics Opt-out browser add-on.

Campaign Monitor

We use Campaign Monitor, a dedicated e-newsletter communication tool, to manage and distribute email newsletters. Campaign Monitor collects information to help us monitor the effectiveness of these newsletters, including:

- the number and email addresses of subscribers that have, or have not, opened an email
- which email client was used to open the email — for example account Gmail, Outlook or Hotmail
- the geographic location where an email was opened
- the number of emails that bounced and weren't successfully delivered
- if a newsletter was shared by email, Facebook or Twitter
- which links are clicked on in an email.

Linking to our website

It's not in our interest — or that of the public — to have uncontrolled versions of our information elsewhere on the internet. Where possible we encourage other websites to link to our website.

When you link to our website you:

- must not present the Veterans' Affairs website in a frame on your website
- must not misrepresent your relationship to Veterans' Affairs
- should only link to main pages, as we cannot guarantee the reliability of other links.

Exceptions

Third party copyright

The permission to reproduce Crown copyright-protected material does not extend to any material on this site that is identified as being the copyright of a third party. Authorisation to reproduce such material must be obtained from the copyright holders concerned.

You must not use this content without permission and following relevant legislation.

Clients with acute mental health needs

Clients with immediate extreme mental health needs (expressing suicidal thoughts/at risk of self harm to themselves or others) will be referred immediately by our staff to the local DHB's Mental Health related services and their GP so that the GP may take appropriate action and support to enable them to get the support they need. Staff may also contact the NZ Police to reduce the threat or risk as their expertise is often necessary in such cases — for example to locate individuals. The Police work to assist Mental Health Services and also regulate the licensing of firearms.

The Police will be contacted immediately in the case of a threat to others or if there is a threat to public safety.

Disclosure in such circumstances does not have the client's authorisation for it to occur.

Staff must reasonably believe that there is a risk to the client or to others for disclosure to occur. We have a duty to make such disclosures to ensure the client's wellbeing which is taken very seriously. This is consistent with the law including the Privacy Act 2020 (IPP 11 (1)(f)).

Clients' personal information and law enforcement

We will only disclose clients' personal information for law enforcement purposes to the NZ Police or another agency exercising law enforcement functions if the information is necessary for a criminal investigation, prosecution or intelligence. The Police or other agency must have a strong case for the information or a search warrant. Staff must have reasonable grounds to believe that disclosure is necessary for that law enforcement purpose. This is consistent with the law including the Privacy Act 2020 (IPP 11 (1)(e)).
